My name is Laís, and I am a Brazilian field ecologist specializing in tropical forest ecosystems and plant-animal interactions. In 2025, I earned a Ph.D. in Biology from the University of Miami, where I enhanced my skills in fieldwork, geospatial analysis, molecular techniques (e-DNA), and statistical analysis. During my academic career, I had the opportunity to work with medium- and large-sized animal species and their ecological roles in tropical rainforests, particularly examining the anthropogenic impacts on species diversity, and conservation challenges across Neotropical landscapes.

Over the years, I have published 14 peer-reviewed articles, three of which were as first author, in leading journals, including Biological Conservation, PNAS, and Ecology. In addition to research, I have been a leading instructor and teaching assistant since 2023 in several undergraduate and graduate courses at the University of Miami and São Paulo State University. I am fluent in Portuguese and English, with research experience spanning Brazil, the United States, Colombia, and Uruguay.
